Prominent Club Woman Took Deep
Interest in Social Work

Mrs Mary Morton Kehew, wife of William B. Kehew, perhaps best known as the active head of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union for more than 20 years, died at her home, 29A Chestnut st, yesterday.

Although her service as president of that institution terminated in 1913, it has been noted that as a mark of honor no one has since that time been appointed to the office.

She was born in Boston on Sept 9, 1859, and was before her marriage Miss Mary Morton Kimball, daughter of the late M. Day Kimball and Susan T. Kimball. Previous to her accepting the office of president of the union she was corresponding secretary for several years. Even since her resignation as president she has served as chairman of the board of government.

She had been active in suffrage affairs and the promotion of the interests of the blind. She was a trustee of Simmons College and a member of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Child Labor Commission. Among the other associations with which she was connected are: The Women's Trade Union League, the Women's Auxillary of the Massachusetts Civil Service Reform Association, the School Voters' League, the College Settlement Association, the Tyler-st Nursery and many others.

She was a member of the Mayflower Club, the Twentieth Century Club, the Women's City Club and the Business Women's Club. She is survived by her husband, two sisters, Mrs Robert Farley Clark and Miss Hannah Parker Kimball, and a brother, Marcus Morton Kimball, all of Boston.

Funeral services will be held at Mt Auburn Chapel tomorrow noon.

On account of the sudden death of Mrs Kehew, the Union "At Home" scheduled for last evening was omitted.
